INJURIES FATAL

Seattle, April 1 (AP) — James Montgomery, 15-year-old West Seattle high school freshman trying out for his school team, collided with a fellow player while going after a pop fly yesterday. He died two hours later of an instant hemorrhage.
 A 10-year-old private shot a young officer to death as a way out of the Army yesterday while bewildered onlookers sat motionless.
 Officials today were attempting to decide whether military or civilian authorities should make charges in the case.
 District Atty. James K. Everts of Belton, Tex., quoted Pvt. Michael T. Kunak of Baltimore, Md., as saying, "I decided the best way to get out of the Army was to kill a man."
 Everts said Kunak made an oral statement to him, other officers and to the presence of a newspaper reporter regarding the fatal shooting of Sgt. L. Howard Williamson, about 38 of Washington, D. C., around noon yesterday.
 Williamson was shot in a Long Horn maneuvers at Fort Belvoir, where a young soldier walked into the officers' mess tent of the 4th Airborne Division signal company, leveled a 30-caliber carbine at Williamson and fired.
 "The soldier told startled officers, 'I don't have any in my ammunition.'"

Combat Pay

allowances for food and rental of everything from privates and recruits to top sergeants and admirals.
 The Senate bill would hold the base pay increase in three per cent, and deal with the food and rental allowances on a flat dollar basis rather than percentages. The average increase in total military pay under the Senate bill is 5.5 per cent.
 The bill varies living cost allowances for the four regular fighting forces — Army, Air Force, Navy and Marines — and four other or unclassified services — the Coast Guard, Coast and Geodetic Survey, Public Health Service and Maritime Service.
 The entire matter including the controversial combat pay rider normally will be decided by a conference consisting of the top-ranking members of the Senate and House Armed Services Committees.
 Rep. Vinson (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate group, favors combat pay but he was voted down in his committee and other Senate conferees are reliably reported opposed.
 Another important factor is that the Senate twice rejected the combat pay proposal on voice and standing votes and then finally inserted it without a rollcall vote.
 The proposed combat pay would go to those who do not now receive hazard pay.
 Part of the vigorous plea for extra combat pay was a protest against the hazard and incentive pay that now goes to officers and men assigned to duty in aircraft, submarines, gliders, deep sea diving, parachute units, bomb demolition squads or other dangerous work.
 "It's fantastic to give any other hazard pay when the front-line infantryman and others actually facing enemy fire do not get it," Sen. McNamara (D-Mich.) said.
 He estimated additional cost of Korean combat pay at 80 million dollars and joined others in support of a series of amendments by Sen. Douglas (D-Ill.) to reduce or eliminate the hazard and incentive pay for others.

announcement now in fullness to anyone who may have an ambition to serve as attorney general. This does not mean that I am retiring from public life. A formal announcement of my plans will be made within the next three weeks."
 Sources close to Murry said there was no doubt but what the "formal announcement" would send Murry's bid sailing into the gubernatorial ring.
 A statement was expected later today by Mayor Ross Lawhon of North Little Rock on his political plans. Lawhon was expected either to announce for governor or seek another term as mayor.
 "I can promise you that my announcement will be big stuff," Lawhon told the Sertoma Club here yesterday.
 And former State Revenue Commissioner Dean R. Morley confirmed today that he may make the race for attorney general now that the job is being vacated by Murry.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN
 HENRI rejoined Heloise on the piazza after Lafayette had set the traps. "Well," he told her, "the traps are all set." He rubbed his hands together. "Lafayette is very talkative. It takes a good deal of time for him to get unbound."
 Heloise nodded. "Lafayette is not good for much. The poor fellow has rheumatism something terrible. That's why he always smells so of Sloan's Liniment. When you don't notice the rotgut liquor on his breath."
 "Where's Leonie gone to?"
 "She went over to the Garrisons."
 "Oh," Henri said. He had intended to pay an unscheduled call on Antoinette. He did not particularly want to go and the defection troubled him; this might give him an excuse.
 "I suppose I'd better go for her," he said. "I don't like Leonie going around at night without an escort."
 "Brother," Heloise said, "you're lapsing into the past. Girls all go out alone now."
 "I don't like it."
 "Leonie is a young girl of the middle class. There's no family carriage to call for her."
 "I don't like to hear you refer to us as middle class," Henri said.
 "Well, what are we, then?"
 "We are gentlefolk," Henri said seriously.
 "Call us anything you like," Heloise said pacifically. "All right, when ten o'clock strikes, you can go three blocks over to the Garrisons' house to escort Miss Leonie home. Maybe you'd better come home from the office several times a day to see if she'd like to go out."
 "I'm not talking about the daytime. I want Leonie to have the sense of dignity that being escorted gives a young woman."
 "Are you going to sing tonight? You'd better do it before Mrs. Flanders gets to bed. It annoys her, you know, and we don't want to make the Lennoxes lose boarders."
 "Confound Mrs. Flanders," Henri said, but he closed the windows carefully before he began his scolding.
 Although he had counted on music and Sir Walter Scott to pass the time, by a quarter to ten Henri was uneasy about Leonie.
 He could, of course, arrive early at the Garrisons, but on the other hand he didn't want to cut Leonie's evening short. He was pacing up and down the piazza, occasionally wondering how many rats had succumbed to Lafayette's skill and relating with difficulty the temptation to examine the traps, when he heard voices in the street. Sensitive to vocal qualities, he identified the girl's voice as Leonie's. The man's, with the characteristically high pitch of Charleston male voices, had an edge of accent that was not quite native.
 In order not to seem unduly concerned, Henri retreated to the dining room and went from there to the door when, after some delay, Leonie rang the bell. In the semidarkness he did not immediately recognize the young man, who said good-evening.
 "Good-evening, sir," Henri responded.
 "Uncle Henri, you remember Lincoln Calvert?" Leonie said.
 The blood rushed to Henri's face, but he controlled himself. "Of course," he said politely but stiffly. "How are you, Lincoln?"
 "Fine, thank you, sir."
 There was an embarrassed silence and then Leonie said, "Thank you for bringing me home."
 "It was a pleasure," Lincoln said. "Good-night."
 "He was at the Garrisons," Leonie said defensively as the door closed.
 Henri looked accusingly at her. "I suppose you didn't know he was going to be there," he said drily.
 "Well, I didn't," Leonie said, and then she added, with a little edge to her voice, "I was agreeably surprised."
 Henri's mind did not operate swiftly enough to frame a withering rebuke to this impertinence.
 "You know I never approved of that boy," he said.
 "You made that fairly plain, Uncle," Leonie said, "when you forbade him to come to our house."
 Before Henri could reply, she was gone.
 Spitting, Henri saw to the closing of the house. He looked the front door with symbolic solemnity, as if he were shutting out all Calverts forever, and then went upstairs to thresh this matter out.
 Heloise was putting away her sewing. She looked at his abrupt entry.
 "What's the matter, Brother? What's the trouble?"

Four Perish in Frisco Hotel Fire

San Francisco, April 1 (AP) — Flames roared through a 4-story residential hotel in one of San Francisco's older districts early today.

Four died. Upwards of a dozen, mostly old age pensioners, were injured.

The dead: Mrs. Mildred Sutherland, about 48; her son, Melvin Sutherland, 49; Mrs. Margaret Hamby, 70 and Mrs. Lena Schiff, about 60.

Firemen answering the alarm found flames pouring from the roof of the old building in the north-central section of the city.

Many residents, including a 10-month-old baby, were carried down ladders. Minutes after several were rescued, flames lashed through a room, charring the end of the ladder which was still in place. The blaze was under control in 30 minutes.

Four policemen on duty near the hotel — on the corner of Fillmore and Fall Streets — were credited with keeping the death toll as low as it was.

Fire Chief Edward P. Walsh, who estimated damage at $40,000, directed a force of 150 men using 30 pieces of equipment. He said the cause was undetermined.

A host of tiny electric switches, commonly known as relays, function in transmitting a call through a dial telephone central office.

Morris Faces

a separate investigation of his department, that if he could back-track a little, he wouldn't appoint Morris to the cleanup job in the light of developments.

Rep. Kenting (R-N.Y.), a member of the House inquiry committee, said in a radio broadcast last night that "somebody will have to yield to one side or the other — there may be some resignations in the offing."

Keating recalled that Morris had said he would ask the President to order the dismissal of anyone who refused to fill out the questionnaires. And if the President failed to back him up, Morris said he would quit.

Morris' only comment was "Let's wait and see what happens."
 Morris, a Republican and former president of the New York City Council, personally took the batch of Justice Department forms to the attorney generals office exactly two weeks ago.

He asked for return of the forms, filled out, by April 7 for Washington personnel, and by April 14 for officials outside the capital. The distribution was requested not by personal names, but by office-title and salary-grade.

Morris specifically requested that the department give him by today the names and home addresses of those receiving the forms, so they could be checked off as the fill-in questionnaires started coming in to him.

McGrath's reversal of opinion stood out starkly against his statement of Feb. 1, when Morris was sworn in, that the latter would have his "complete, enthusiastic and unlimited co-operation."

That promise was followed by presidential instructions to the entire executive branch that any request for information made by Morris be given top priority.

Arkansan to Head Rotary District

Eureka Springs, April 1 (AP) — Dr. Ben Saltzman of Mountain Home, Ark., last night was elected governor of District 196 of Rotary International.

Dr. Saltzman was elected in the closing business session of the district's two-day convention here. The district includes Northwest Arkansas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri.

Dr. Saltzman succeeds H. L. Aston of McAlester, Okla.

Clinton to Be Highway Hub

Clinton, April 1 (AP) — Clinton soon will be the hub of five hard surfaced highways, Gov. McMath promised in a speech here last night.

The governor was honor guest at a local dinner and later addressed an estimated 150 persons at the conference.

McMath said he still was trying to speed up the highway program.

State GOP Votes May Be Split

By The Associated Press

Which candidate for the Republican presidential nomination will Arkansas' 11 delegates to the National GOP Convention support?

That was a subject for another debate between Arkansas supporters of Sen. Robert Taft and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower Monday.

Wallace Townsend, National Republican Committeeman and a leading spokesman for the Taft camp, predicted that seven of the 11 delegates would vote for the Ohio senator.

But Taft peck, a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination this year, and an Eisenhower or leader was equally confident that the general would get Arkansas' vote.

Speck ventured no prediction of the number of Eisenhower men that will be among the 11 delegates and 11 alternates to the big Chicago convention.

But he said, "After traveling over Arkansas for the past three weeks, I feel confident that the majority of Arkansas' delegates will vote for Gen. Eisenhower."

The membership of the convention delegation will be determined this month. Five Congressional District conventions will be held in April and the state convention, scheduled for Little Rock April 25-26.

Six delegates and six alternates will be chosen at the district conventions; four delegates at large and their alternates will be named at the state meeting.

One delegate and his alternate — both uncommitted but favoring Taft — have been selected from the Fourth District in South Arkansas.

The next district meetings will be that of the Fifth's in Conway April 8, Sixth District Republicans meet in Pine Bluff April 10, and the Second District meets in Batesville April 11.

The Third District meets in Humsville April 15, and the First District convenes in Jonesboro April 21, one day before the state convention opens.

Reno Burglary Group Indicted

Las Vegas, Nev. April 1 (AP) — Federal indictments have been returned against six persons accused in the $1,500,000 burglary at the home of Reno millionaire last month.

The grand jury charged all six with transporting stolen property across state lines. They are Jeanne Darr McChaud, Benton H. Robinson, Leona Rogers, Andrew Robert Young, John Trillinger and Frank Joseph Sorrenti Jr.

Each was set at $50,000 each. The defendants were arrested in six states in the last week.

A. J. Sweeney, who was arrested in the Reno burglary, was charged with transporting stolen property across state lines.

holding news conferences and meeting people.
 Some of the best political brains in the state helped map his campaign and advised him at every step along the way. One of them told this reporter, months ago, "Wisconsin is the big one for us. This is the one we're concentrating on."

Taft was defeated in New Hampshire by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. Not long afterward, Eisenhower received an unprecedented 106,000 votes, all of them written in on the ballot, in Minnesota.

Consequently, observers feel that Taft needs a smashing victory in Wisconsin to offset these earlier developments.

By DON WHITEHEAD

Omaha, April 1 (AP) — Nebraska voters got their chance today to give the nation a glimpse of what a part of the great Midwest thinks about the Republican and Democratic presidential candidates.

The promise of clear, crisp weather across the state was expected to draw perhaps 300,000 voters to the polls. This was the climax to one of the most bitterly fought primary campaigns ever waged in this Republican stronghold.

A big and unwieldy ballot was laid before voters in all the state's 2,038 precincts. The polls opened at 8 a. m. (local time) and were due to close at 8 p. m. The count was certain to be slow, with a trend unlikely until late tonight.

Holding the center of attention was the hotly contested write-in drives for GOP candidates Sen. Taft of Ohio and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. Running a close second was Sen. Kefauver of Tennessee and Sen. Kerr of Oklahoma.

There appeared to be no clear-cut choice in either race. None of the candidates was making any optimistic claims of victory.

But it appeared that the Nebraska presidential "popularity" contest would help determine these important questions:

1. Is Taft on his way back to high political prestige after his defeats by Eisenhower in New Hampshire and Minnesota?

2. Can Oklahoma's Sen. Kerr get his own bandwagon rolling with a defeat of Kefauver, who has become the No. 1 contender for the Democratic presidential nomination?

The Republican campaign was thrown into a loud and angry squabble late yesterday when Taft's Nebraska campaign manager made an open appeal for supporters of Gen. Douglas MacArthur to come into the Taft camp.

Rep. Howard Buffett (R-Neb.), directing the Taft drive, said in a speech: "Listen to me, you people who are for MacArthur. If you believe in MacArthur, you should write in a vote for Robert A. Taft."

Because Taft and MacArthur are on the same team — and right now Taft is carrying the ball — Buffett was asked if he meant it was possible MacArthur might be "carrying the ball" sometime in the future, rather than Taft.

"I suppose there is that possibility," he replied.

Says Probers Doing Job of Others
 Los Angeles, April 1 (AP) — Congressional investigating committees are doing jobs that rightfully should be done by the Justice Department, Sen. Morse (R-Ore.) told a town hall meeting here.

"If we had a Justice Department that was properly doing its job, we would not have to have a Newbold Morris appointed by the President to act in its stead," the senator said.

"Congressional committees in this period of hysteria act in the role of prosecutors," he asserted. "We must put an end to 'guilt by association' processes and place the burden of proof on government in some of these investigative accusations."

Press Group Meet

Conway, April 1 (AP) — Approximately 200 high school journalists are expected for the Arkansas High School Press Association meeting at Arkansas State Teachers College April 25-26.

Expect Barkley to Go After Nomination

Washington, April 1 (AP) — Friends of Vice President Alben Barkley predicted an expected nod from him today to push him into the scramble for the Democratic presidential nomination.

They looked for him to be in the race within a few days.
 "Now that President Truman has stepped aside, Mr. Barkley is the only man who can unite the various wings of the Democratic party," Sen. Gillette (D-Ta.) said.

"He's the best vote-getter in the Democratic party and he owes to the party and to himself to make a formal announcement immediately," Gillette said.

Two veteran Democratic senators, Hooty of North Carolina and George of Georgia, predicted separate interviews the 74-year-old Barkley will be in the presidential derby before the week ends.

And Rep. Underwood from Barkley's home state of Kentucky said Barkley would "carry all the doubtful states" and assure continued Democratic control of the House and Senate.

Hooty said he has no inside information but is confident that Barkley will "announce his candidacy this week."

Georgia, who is backing Georgia colleague Sen. Russell for the nomination, said Barkley, "seek the presidential nomination, even if he is only shooting for other term as vice president."

All congressmen and party leaders apparently have accepted face value Truman's dramatic week-end announcement that he will not run for re-election.

Most of them also appeared confident that Truman would not attempt to name his successor, leaving that to the Democratic National Convention in July.

Some senators thought Underwood was launching a Barkley-for-President boom on the Senate floor yesterday.

The Kentuckyian said Barkley had "electrified the audience" with his speech at Saturday night Democratic dinner, at which President Truman declared himself out of the race. And if the nation needs wise leadership, Underwood said, Kentucky offers the seasoned Barkley.

Off the floor, Underwood said the decision to announce for the Presidency was up to Barkley and add: "I know he has had a strong demand on him to do so."

Barkley presided over the Senate yesterday but had no news for Capitol reporters about his plans.

April Showers Hit Big Section
 By The Associated Press
 April showers and, then a deluge hit wide areas of the country today. There were show flurries in northeastern Minnesota and along the eastern slope of the Rockies.

Heavy rainfall was reported in some parts of the Gulf states, with nearly 4.5 inches in Pensacola, yesterday. The fall at Ajacachi, Fla., was nearly one inch.

The rain belt extended over the middle Mississippi Valley, the Ohio Valley, the Great Lakes region and in the Eastern Gulf states.

Mild weather continued over the Gulf states, The Ohio Valley, the South and Middle Atlantic states and most of the Great Lakes region. But it was cooler in the northern tier of states from the upper Mississippi Valley to the Pacific Coast. It also was below freezing in parts of New England.

kansas Women's Softball tourney is

Northwest Regional Women's Tour-

More Problems
Facing Pro
Golfers

Augusta, Ga., April 1 (AP) — With
the lid of secrecy knocked off "the Corcoran affair," touring professional golfers today considered
three big problems:

How to win the Masters Tournament beginning Thursday.

The weather.

And, whether Fred Corcoran,
newly signed tournament committee promotion director will win approval and backing reportedly necessary to complete the setting up of a new Professional Golf Association Bureau.

The new bureau not only is designed to promote tournaments and golf in general, but plans call for the bureau and Corcoran to assist in relations between touring golf stars and tournament sponsors.

A PGA meeting is set for April 21-23 in Chicago to consider tournament plans and the signing of Corcoran.

It was revealed to The Associated Press yesterday that Corcoran and officials that Corcoran — deposed tournament director from 1936-1947
for the PGA — had been signed to a contract March 1.

Several reliable sources said that if Corcoran gets a strong vote of confidence in Chicago he will assume the duties given him by the contract.

The secret contract, negotiated
during the winter between the tournament committee and Corcoran and his lawyers, calls for the devotion of a promotional clearing house; supply information on tourney sites, dates and records;
act as a public relations man and help in repairing relations between the stars and tournament sponsors.

A light rain yesterday afternoon
out smart practices rounds for the Masters. The Weather Bureau said unfriendly weather would continue at least until Wednesday.

Yankees Still Believed the Team to Beat

By ED CORRIGAN
AP Sports Writer

With the start of the major league season only two weeks away, this is shakedown time for the clubs. The managers have quit experimenting with rookies and now are starting their faunts north and east with the hopes of getting the regulars in shape.

A quick look at prospects of some of the teams seems to be in order.

American League:

New York-Casey Stengel's operatives still are the ones to beat,
even with the loss of Joe DiMog-lio and the probable departure of Jerry Coleman to the Marine Corps. The Yanks still have a top pitching staff, backed by plenty of power and some smooth newcomers, namely young Andy Carey,
who probably will take over third base.

Cleveland — The Indians have the best "big four" pitching staff in baseball, and if any team is going to beat out the Yanks, it should be the Tribe. Bob Feller, Mike Garcia, Bob Lemon and Steve Gromek can beat any team on any given day.

Boston — This is a puzzle, but Red Sox have been hitting, but haven't been getting much pitching, their trouble down through the years. There's a feeling around the Grapefruit Circuit that Lou Boudreau isn't satisfied with the team he inherited. The suspicion is that he'll give the veterans a change, and if they don't come through, he'll try to get rid of them.

Chicago — Manager Paul Richards seems to be in the same boat
as last year when he astounded
one and all in the first half of the season, then watched his club run out of steam. He says it will be a running team. But the question is: Will pitchers like Bill Pierce
and Paul Rogovin come through Most observers doubt it.

Detroit — No power, and Manager Red Rolfe knows it. He's hoping he can get a long-ball hitter to back up a fair pitching staff. Art Houtteman ought to be of considerable help to the hurlers.

National League:

New York — Pitching won't fit
for the Giants last year, and Manager Leo Durocher apparently is going to rely on his elbowmen again. He lost his top infielder, Eddie Stanky,
and can only hope that Davey Williams fills the gap.

Brooklyn — Here's the club that was rated tops all through the last year. Don Newcombe, who won 26, has been lost to the service, and Manager Chuck Dressen is hoping Clem Labine and Chris Van Cuyk can take up the slack. Otherwise the team is substantially the same.

St. Louis — The dark horses. The Cards have the power, and the word is that all they need is some pitching. They've been getting it all spring, and if young Willard Schmidt keeps up at his present pace, they'll make things tough for the top contenders.

Philadelphia — The Phils have shown more spark this year than last, and are heartened by the fact that Curt Simmons is due out of the Army. They have good pitching, no hitting. With Simmons back, though, they'll be contenders.

In yesterday's games, the Cards
defeated the Phillies, 8-6; the Yankees shut out the Tigers, 3-0; and the Pirates and Browns played a 7-7 tie in 10 innings.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By GAYLE TALBOT

Los Angeles, April 1 (AP) — Whatever else may be said for Ty Cobb's recent magazine flouting of modern baseball players, it at least may be said for certain that the old Georgia Peach's outburst has supplied the principal topic of conversation within the fraternity for the past couple of weeks.

We've heard him blasted as a sneered eccentric whom the world has passed by and we've heard some smart baseball men, both of Ty's generation and the present
one, warmly support his contention that the game and its players have gone plumb to the dogs.

Those who played with or against Cobb appear still to be fascinated about him and to recall incidents
from his fiery career.

Ever heard about the time he came into the clubhouse bleeding about the face and ears and with his shirt half ripped off? He began to change into his uniform and one of his teammates asked him
what had happened, possibly hoping for the worst.

"Nothing much," Ty replied. "I just got tired waiting to get into the phone booth outside and so I reached in and yanked this fellow out by the collar. Turned out he had none a lot of professional fighting. He was real good."

Whether they liked him or not,
they concede that Cobb was a fearless man, either on or off the field,
and that he would fight any man who crossed him. At one gathering, a former player expressed some doubt about this and said he had heard of Cobb backing down, but he was heavily outvoted by the other oldtimers present.

As near as it is possible to generalize, most of those who played in Cobb's day agree, perhaps naturally, that there were more great players among the old bunch than there are today and that "inside"
baseball as they played it is a thing of the past. They are not sure, though, that Ty was wise to come out punching quite the way
he did.

"It's too bad," one of them said.
"This would cost Ty a lot of friends if he had them to lose."

The present day players and the younger managers such as Al Lopez of Cleveland and Leo Durocher of the New York Giants haven't a good word to say for any of Cobb's remarks. Lopez says flatly that Ty could not have run the bases — the way he did in the old days against him or any other of today's better critcher.

Sutton, King
Found Guilty
by a Jury

New York, April 1 (UP) — An
all-male jury which had debated throughout the night filed into the box at dawn today and pronounced Willie (The Actor) Sutton and his gunman pal, Thomas (Mad Dog)
Kling, guilty of robbing a Queens County bank of $83,942 two years ago.

The verdict for Sutton meant little as far as years in the penitentary go. It would add a maximum of 30 years to the 100 or more he already faces in unexpired terms
on other robbery charges.

The jury, which received the case at 7:30 p. m. EST yesterday, delivered the guilty verdict at 5:47
a. m. EST in the 11th trial day.

As the jury filed the box, the defendants were told to rise and face
the standing men. Jury Foreman Donald Maloney, a landscape architect, pronounced the verdict.

"Sutton and Kling guilty as charged."

That meant the jury had decided both defendants were guilty on four counts. The maximum penalty with sentences running concurrently on all four counts would be 30 years. However, that could be debated if the state, prior to sentencing, files an information with the court proving the defendants are multiple felony offenders.

At the request of the defense, the jury was polled. To the question
"Is that your verdict," each juror answered: "It is."

The atmosphere of fear which had hung over the trial since its beginning on March 18 had continued through to yesterday's summations. In his summation, Assistant District Attorney James P.
Grattan told the jury he was convinced the state's first important witness, an elderly vault custodian, "was scared stiff" on the stand.

That witness had failed positively to identify Sutton and Kling,
Other bank employees did.

Sutton was arrested Feb. 18,
when the alertness of a 24-year-old clothing salesman led police to him. Nineteen days later, the salesman, Arnold Schuster, was shot dead a few doors from his home.

Threatening letters to his family and the man who found his body caused a reign of terror in the neighborhood.

Because of that fear, and because slippery Willie had escaped from three prisons during his 30-year

crime career, the Queens County Court House was under the heaviest guard in its history during the trial.

Spectators were screened and admitted to the courtroom only on special pass. Out of court, police guarded Judge Peter T. Farrell and employees in the bank who had identified Sutton prior to the trial.

Judge Farrell immediately after the verdict announced Sutton and Kling would be sentenced at an indeterminate later date. The sentences were expected to be pronounced in about a month.

John De Venuta, an admitted accomplice in the robbery who was indicted with Sutton and Kling but received a trial severance when he decided to testify against them,
will be arraigned after the sentencing.

Sutton and Kling were returned to cells in the Queens City Prison
at the rear of the courthouse.

As the jury retired, Sutton let it be known through his lawyer, George Washington Herz, that he thought he got "a fair trial — fairer than I ever got before in my life."

But as the verdict was pronounced, Sutton bit his lower lip and Kling, who bears the underworld nicknames of "Scup" and
"Mad Dog," sighed.

The jury took an hour and 45
minutes for dinner before beginning its long deliberation at 9:15
p. m. Kling and Sutton nervously paced back and forth in the bullpen just off the third floor courtroom.
